

Mable Bengé

Mable R. Bengé, 82, of Berea Road in Richmond, passed away Friday, Jan. 20, 2012 at the Hospice Compassionate Care Center of Richmond.

She was born in McKee, Kentucky in Jackson County on November 3, 1929. She was the widow of Harold Bengé, who preceded her in death in 1991. She was also preceded in death by her father, Howard Rennix; and a sister-in-law, Inez Maupin.

Mable attended Silver Creek Elementary School and graduated from Kingston High School. She received her BS degree from Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College, and was a retired teacher. She was a member of the Madison County Retired Teachers Association, Silver Creek Homemakers where she had served as president and former vice-president and former president of the Madison County Extension Homemakers. She was Homemaker of the Year in 1994 and a district board member of the Madison County Extension Services. She also served as a member of the board of building commission with the Madison County Extension Services. Mable was of the Baptist faith.

Survivors include her daughter, Mary Elizabeth Gibbon, and husband, Mike of LaGrange, Georgia; her mother, Lina Johnson Rennix of Richmond; one grandson, Chris Clark, and wife, Wendee, of Richmond; two great-grandchildren, Rylee Elizabeth and Reagan Clark, both of Richmond; one sister, Freda Wilson, and husband, Walter, of Lexington and step-grandchildren, Glenn Gibbon, Geoff (Kristen) Gibbon, Dale Marie Gibbon and Drew Gibbon. She is also survived by two sisters-in-law, Geneva Ray and Lena Pennington.

Services were conducted on Tuesday, January 24, 2012, at Oldham, Roberts & Powell Funeral Home, with Rev. Ron "Butch" Pennington and Rev. Howard Wilson officiating. Burial was at the Madison County Memorial Gardens.

Pallbearers were Chris Clark, John Wilson, Jim Fleenor, Kenneth Tate, Emerson McAfee, Wendell Combs, Brandon Lake and Chad Tate. Honorary pallbearers were the Honorable Rita Smart and members of the Silver Creek Homemakers.

In lieu of flowers, donations are suggested to the Hospice Compassionate Care Center, 350 Isaacs Lane, Richmond, KY 40475.

Florence Saylor Reppert

Florence Saylor Reppert, 83, died Monday, Jan. 23, 2012 at the Compassionate Care Center in Richmond. She was a lifelong resident of Rockcastle County, born October 23, 1928, and was the daughter of the late Eugene and Etta Alexander Saylor.

Florence owned and operated Superior Food Market in Mt. Vernon for many years before retirement, and was a member of Fairview Baptist Church. She was a homemaker, and known throughout the area as an avid flower gardener, vegetable gardener, quilt maker and amazing cook.

"Gran" as she was affectionately known, was a loving mother, grandmother, great grandmother, friend and neighbor.

Survivors include three children, Ronnie (Helen) Reppert, Lonnie (Geraldine) Reppert and Melody (Tammie Gentry) Reppert; one brother, Conley Saylor; one sister, Billie Smith; five grandchildren, Ronnie Dale, Allis, Cory, Codey and Dylan; and two great grandchildren, Andrew and Coleson. She is also survived by her long time caregivers, Lillie Lawhorn and Eula Combs; and her special dog, Buster.

In addition to her parents, she was preceded in death by her loving husband of 53 years, Tilford Reppert; and seven siblings, Tim, Collie Belle, Harve, George, Pete, Estill and Irvine.

The funeral service will be 11 a.m. Thursday, Jan. 26, 2012 at Reppert Funeral Home with Bro. Michael McFerron officiating. Burial will follow in Berea Cemetery.

Visitation will be Wednesday from 6 - 9 p.m. at the funeral home. Pallbearers will be Stacey Irvin, Codey Stewart, Gary Kidwell, Wendell Williams, Rick Cox and Jack Kellerman. Honorary pallbearers will be her grandchildren, great grandchildren, Helen Reppert, Geraldine Reppert and Tammie Gentry.

The family welcomes floral arrangements as their mother was an avid flower gardener. Expressions of sympathy may also take the form of contributions to Hospice Care Plus, 208 Kidd Drive, Berea, KY

BEREA POLICE REPORTS

Police Reports from 1/16/12 - 1/22/12

Robbery Arrest

On 01/19/2012, police charged Meredith Martinez, 30, of the 1000 block of Brooklyn Blvd for robbery -- second degree. Police responded to the area of the Berea Walmart. Employees of Walmart tried to detain Martinez for returning items that had not been paid for. Martinez refused to cooperate with employees. He fled the store and struck one of the employees in the face with his hand. Employees were able to obtain a license number of the vehicle and Martinez was located a short time later. Martinez was arrested and lodged in the Madison County Detention Center.

Theft From Business

On 01/16/2012, police responded to the New Energy Fitness center at 215 Pauline Drive. Officers arrived and spoke with the business owner who told them that sometime during the night someone stripped the casing out of the AC unit. Police checked with other businesses and was unable to obtain any video surveillance.

Drug Arrest

On 01/21/2012, police charged Jennifer Smith, 37, of Manchester, KY with unlawful possession of meth precursor -- first offense. A traffic stop was conducted because of an expired license plate. The owner gave consent to the police to search her vehicle. The police discovered 7.2 grams of Pseudoephedrine, a four pack of Lithium batteries and 32 ounces of Coleman fuel. All of these items are used in the production of methamphetamine. Harry Henson, 34 of Goosetown, KY, and Ashley Holland, 23, of Manchester, KY were also charged. All were charged with unlawful possession of a meth precursor -- first offense, and were lodged in the Madison County Detention Center.

Burglary of Business

On 01/21/2012, police responded to the area of 201 Pauline Drive. When officers arrived on scene, they found two open doors to the businesses Advance Animal Care and One Main Financial. Surveillance video from Advance Animal Care showed a white male, of medium build, wearing a white shirt and blue jeans in the building. The burglar took off with an undermined amount of cash and computers. This crime is still under investigation.

Theft From Vehicle

On 01/16/2012, a resident from the 100 block of Brooklyn Blvd reported that his parked vehicle had been entered sometime during the night, and a number of items were stolen. The stolen items were described as one iPod Nano blue in color; and a 9mm semi-automatic handgun black in color. The estimated loss was $310.00

Prescription Fraud

On 01/18/2012, police charged Adam Croucher, 29, of Berea for unauthorized procurement of a controlled substance. Officers responded to Berea Drug to investigate a person picking up someone's medication. The investigation revealed that the accused had picked up someone else's controlled substance without permission. Croucher was arrested, and lodged in the Madison County Detention Center.

Anyone with information regarding the above listed cases is asked to contact the Berea Police Department at 859-986-8456.

Who needs Oscar and Emmy - the Kentucky Press Association Awards Banquet, with not a red carpet in sight, is good enough for us. Seriously I know it's not considered good form in some circles but I'm going to brag on Beth anyway. She brought back six awards from the annual news contest our state's press association sponsors every year and although she'll be the first to tell you she's still learning in many areas, I couldn't be prouder of what she's accomplished in a matter of a few months.

The judging is always done by another state's press association; this year it was South Carolina. It's gratifying to have your work affirmed by your peers, so I'm always pleased with the accolades that come with winning these things. But I can honestly say, I have never been happier with judges' comments than I was this time around. Especially considering the contentious nature of some of the things reported on in the winning stories.

I'd like to share three of their comments. On Beth's winning piece in the general news category they said, "A town considering a Fairness Law is heading for controversy, and Beth Myers provides a balanced story from both perspectives without a hint of bias."

On her entry in columns this is what they had to say, "Beth Myers wrote ... good columns about local issues. Her viewpoints were clearly stated and rational without being emotional. Congratula- tions."

And in ongoing coverage here is the judges' remark, "This series of stories presented an interesting, controversial topic in an informative and unbiased manner. The use of colorful citizen comments, as well as descriptions of the meetings and rally, helps place the reader in the scene. The writer presented both sides of a contentious proposal without taking a side."

As a publisher, those remarks are exactly what I would hope for. Especially in this day when many in the media seem to report according to their own biases and slant coverage, intentionally or not, to fit their own preconceived notions or even more disturbing, an agenda.

So, three cheers for Beth, who as we discuss often, reports, "Just the facts ma'am, just the facts" but in a colorful and well written way.

Step Back, and Let Things Work

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers Editor

As winter moves along and our deer season is over, it seems that we are now entering the Berea hunting season for the Tourism Funding and/or Budget. This season doesn't always happen at the same time, it's more dependent on environmental factors such as which hot air is blowing which wind from which city council member.

I sat in the Berea Tourism Commission meeting on Tuesday, after sitting through the city council meeting a week ago, and thought about the political factors at play with the tourism budget. Since the restaurant tax passed a few years ago, it seems that the issue has changed from whether we should be collecting the restaurant tax at all to the current question of what it should be spent on. The sticky factor in all of this is that legally, the revenue generated can only be spent in very limited ways.

A council member proclaimed last week that half of the restaurant tax revenue should be set aside for bike trails, paths and anything it could be spent on legally. Evidently he didn't care what it got spent on, as long as tourism didn't get it and it wasn't illegal. I was a bit amused by the statement, thinking of how city council members would react if department heads got up and said they were putting aside their revenues for "services for the people, and anything we can legally spend it on!" I doubt such an ill-advised plan would meet with much approval.

There was also concern expressed that a group consisting of tourism and city staff had looked at the Carpenter building on Chestnut, as if the viewing of the site was a conspiracy that should be brought to light; when in fact, the discussion of such a purchase has been discussed in televised meetings.

The uninformed assumptions that were being thrown out right and left, and the constant interruptions, reminded me of city council meetings from over a year ago. It wasn't a good memory.

I appreciate city council's role in monitoring the budget, and the City of Berea needs them to stay diligent and watchful over the financial processes. But I'm concerned by what I heard from a couple city council members regarding the tourism department and their budget - it smacked of a personal shakedown.

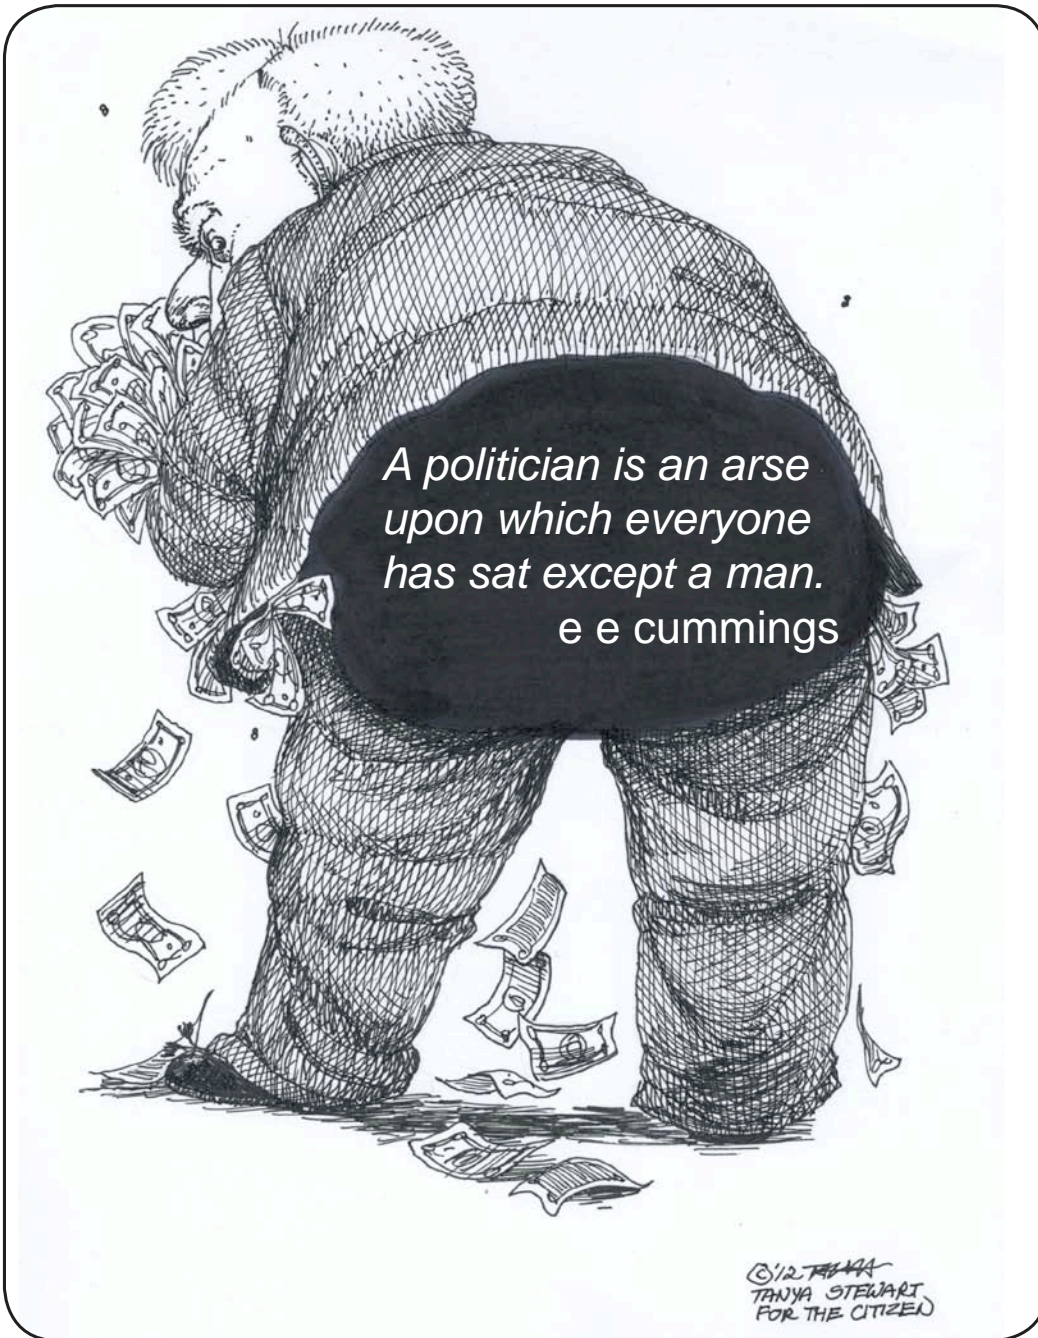

At one point, one of them said he wanted to slash the tourism budget, and later on he stated he wanted to get his hands on that money. Another one mentioned that there was all this tourism money just floating around, as if our city staff threw the dollar bills under a mattress while fans blew with the windows open.

I wonder why these council members want to cut the knees off of tourism's funding. While there have been questions about why to spend this on advertising, or why to spend this on publicity -- questions appropriate for city leaders to ask -- the fact is that the tourism department is self-sustaining from the restaurant tax and has showed impressive success. A significant amount of revenue is brought into Berea through tourism, and the development of some creative ideas like the Learnshops is only increasing it. The Berea tourism commission members include artisans, motel owners, chamber of commerce representatives, bed and breakfast owners; these are people with business experience and savvy, not a group to make impulsive, flighty recommendations.

Sometimes I wonder if the problem isn't that the city runs a little too smoothly. A couple city council members seem to need to find something to fix, something to expose, something they can point to and say, "ah-ha, I knew there was a reason I've been complaining." Like us journalists - digging up any dirt to have a story.

But the fact is, we have a competent, far-sighted and experienced city manager, and department heads with experience and knowledge to bring to the table. The City of Berea, from my viewpoint, has been running fairly well. Perhaps what we need now are city council members who know when to step up, and when to back off and let things keep working.

Comments on Prior Letter

Dear editor:

A writer of a letter to the editor seemed offended that Barack Obama chose to be a black man; the writer was shocked by statements taken from Barack Obama's two books. I don't know if the quotes listed are word for word accurate or are taken out of context. I do know I was not shocked or offended by anything I read in those books.

The letter writer seemed not to have read them. Had he done so, he might have been fascinated by the very human story of what do you do when you are born into a society that for so long considered someone black if they had "one drop of black blood." (The multi-ethnic category is a relatively recent addition to the dialogue.)

The letter writer said: "If the character of a man who would essentially disavow his own mother because of her race...is not a matter that would influence your vote; then you too are a racist according to the writing of the late Dr. Martin Luther King."

I read Barack Obama's books before I voted for him. I plan to vote for him again. Those who know me well can tell others how I stand regarding racism.

The letter writer would probably laugh if Barack Obama "had chosen" his mother's side and claimed to be white—yet with his on the one hand/ on the other even mix, for President Obama to say: "I'm white" could be plausible. That was his dilemma as a young man, one that he explains in his books with detail and with honesty. Though society had already chosen for him what he was, Barack Obama, who was raised by and loved his white grandparents, had to choose which identity made sense and resonated with him. As Lincoln said: A house divided against itself cannot stand. The same holds true for a man. Barack Obama's mother had a PH. D. in anthropology. She very much understood why her son needed to lean to the black side of his birthing equation to forge his identity.

Though President Obama is not descended from slaves, his wife and his daughters are. Blacks have had a long history of brutal oppression in this country—many whites didn't care about them or about the content of their character. I wonder if the letter writer can imagine what kind of "coil of rage" some whites might have if white Americans had been subjected to centuries of abuse, which often ended with the coil of rope?

Like President Obama, I include Nelson Mandela and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr among my heroes. I participated in the Civil Rights Freedom Marches. I'm a regular at the uplifting King Day Celebrations here in Berea. I hope the letter writer, who wrote of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr, will join in these celebrations. I'm a fan of anyone who speaks out against oppression.

George Strange
Berea

Reader Concerned About Spending

I have recently found that the City of Berea and the Tourism Board are considering the acquisition of the old Carpenter Paint Store on Chestnut and an adjacent store front to use as a venue for artisans. The most recent meeting among the principals was on Thursday, Jan. 19. The proposed acquisition would be in excess of $250 thousand dollars. I mentioned this issue to the mayor and city council members on Jan. 17 and the mayor, while knowing of this proposed venture, did not provide any information. Several city council members professed not knowing of the proposal. Further discussions during the council meeting did bring the issue to the floor.

The discussion of this proposed acquisition and tourism in general is being taken behind closed doors in a working session with only the city council and other city officials in attendance. My perception of the problem is the city and tourism board are not doing an adequate job of getting tourists from Interstate 75 and the Artisan Center to Old Town Berea, let alone trying to get tourists to an artisan venue on Chestnut. My understanding is this property will be paid for using monies collected from the 3% food sales tax passed in 2007.

Just because the city has the money doesn't mean it has to be spent without showing the public a cost benefit analysis. The public should be shown an analysis showing tax dollars spent against tourist dollars coming into Berea. If this is not done, the citizens of Berea should move to force a repeal of the 3% tax. If you have concerns about this issue please contact the mayor, city manager, and/or members of the city council. This is just one man's opinion.

Jim Lucas
Berea

Editor's Note

By law, all city meetings must always be open to the public.

The 3% restaurant tax applies solely to the purchase of prepared, hot food.

Berea Community has already purchased watermelon, strawberries and tomatoes from a Waco farm as part of their Farm to School program.

The Farm to School program is a partnership between the school and the Madison County Health Department, with Madison as one of ten counties that was funded by a Farm to School grant.

The Farm to School program is only one component of the efforts of Berea around nutrition and fitness. A Healthy Communities grant has not only helped pay for fresh fruits and vegetables, but also helped to purchase two greenhouses that have just been completed. One farm has already offered to donate plants and trays for the greenhouses.

Board member Elizabeth Crowe thanked Michelle and her staff for their work and then asked if they have considered bringing these programs to the middle and high school level.

"Is this grant focused or limited to elementary school?" Crowe asked. "I'd like to see the food sampling at the middle and high school level."

Middle and high school principal Donna Lovell stated that for ease of the grant, the activities were planned around the elementary school level, but that some of the program would be offered at the older level. Crowe also asked Hammonds if the fresh produce was proving to be difficult for the workers in the cafeteria to transition to. Hammons stated that they've only purchased things that did not take a great deal of preparation time, so it has been pretty easy to incorporate the fresh fruits and vegetables so far. Some of the farmers have even discussed having a second growing season to accommodate the school needs.

"I'd love to have some discussion with you, the board and the Wellness Committee on truly making these programs district-wide," Crowe said. "It makes a lot of sense to at least explore the idea."

Elementary school principal Debbie Coleman told the board that the wellness committee was very committed to their work, and has introduced a lot of creative ideas. The school has continued to avoid candy and other sweets as regular motivators, and attendance incentives are now movement items such as Frisbees or bikes. There are 18 raised beds now outside the school, where different classrooms are growing their own food and then eating them for snacks.

In Lovell's report to the board, she discussed the meeting the teachers and other intervention specialists had during the past week. They took a day and spent time identifying 110 middle school students in need of intervention, and deciding who would invite those students to different enrichment activities.

"The conversation was fantastic," Lovell said. "We discussed not only grades, but also students that we need to get a handle on who would need some extra opportunities."

The high school staff, including advisor Eef Fontanez, are also planning a senior seminar for the first time ever. This seminar would focus on, according to Lovell, what the students are going to do once they leave the school. The seminar would include information on financials, such as handling credit cards, as well as interviewing and the application process. This year the largest group of students is attending the vocational school from Berea, 20 in total, and they are reporting very favorable experiences.

The board also approved the purchase of two additional 78 passenger school buses on Monday night, vehicles that will have digital video recording, as well as refinancing the revenue bonds. The school board received certificates of recognition, in honor of School Board Recognition Month, and also pieces of pie in honor of National Pie Day on Monday.

able," Paula Dunson-Wood said, a member of the Berea Human Rights Commission. "We've been working together really well."

Dunson-Wood faced discrimination issues last year, when her son and his girlfriend, an interracial couple, found their vehicles spray-painted with racial slurs. She has found working on the commission a gratifying process, after experiencing that act of racial harassment.

She is clear, however, that she is representing more than just her ethnic group.

"I'm not only representing African-Americans, but all people who need their rights protected," Dunson-Wood said.

The other members on the commission are Jeanne Gregory, Tim Hampton, Chad Hembree, Jonathan Schinhofen, Lisa Vaughn and Mae Suramek. Suramek, who had prior experience with a human rights commission, is serving as chair of the group.

The group has met three times so far since November, and have spent that time discussing different organizational issues, such as the budget they will request from the city and office space. Though the details still need to be worked out, they will most likely be using a work or office space in Berea City Hall. They've also had initial conversations on how they will start their work in the community.

"We've been talking about events in the community where we could have a meaningful and logical presence," one commission member said. "We're also speaking of ways through social networking and other online resources to be more visible to the community."

All members of the group have undergone an orientation and training with the Kentucky Commission on Human Rights. Juan Pena from the Kentucky Commission led them through a three-hour training, where they reviewed state laws, the equal opportunity fair housing act and KRS 344, the Kentucky Civil Rights Act. They also received information on resources they could access.

"We're really starting from scratch," one commission member said, "so there's a lot to discuss."

But members of the Berea Commission agreed that their diverse group has worked very well together, with a common sense of purpose and service to the community.

New Health Report of Coal Production Impact

In a state almost exclusively reliant on coal for electricity generation, a new health assessment released today concludes that people in Kentucky are sick from coal production, and that state officials need to urgently focus on how to create energy supplies that ensure the health and well being of all Kentuckians.

The "Health Impact Assessment of Coal and Clean Energy Options," compiled and reviewed by public and environmental health experts in Kentucky, looks at the full-cycle impacts of coal, energy efficiency, and renewable energy options that are less harmful, and recommends that legislators support clean energy policies. One such policy is HR-167, the Clean Energy Opportunity Act, introduced in January 2012 by Representative Mary Lou Marzian.

"A majority of Kentuckians believe that legislators should work to improve our health, and one sure way to do that is to improve our air quality through clean energy policy," said Deborah Payne, MPH, health coordinator for the Kentucky Environmental Foundation in Berea and co-author of the health assessment.

Dr. Elizabeth Walker, Berea College health professor and co-author of the report, said, "The HIA process enables us to talk about energy policy in a new way, and uncover benefits we didn't realize were possible."

Walker involved her students - many of whom come from coal mining communities or live near coal power plants - in the HIA research process and observed, "My students learned about the complexities of coal in Kentucky, about the split between people needing coal mining for jobs but also suffering the health effects of coal mining and coal plant emissions. They came to understand that we in Kentucky have a right to both healthy jobs and a clean, healthy environment."

Kentucky's state and federal legislators have consistently supported the coal industry despite evidence of its health and economic harm.

Elizabeth Crowe, Executive Director of the Kentucky Environmental Foundation said, "It's time Kentucky legislators rally around saving lives, rather than the reputation of the coal industry, and stand up for the ability of our children to grow up healthy and strong. We're ready for a new conversation about energy policy: decision making as if our health really matters."

Pirate Swimmers Face Challenges

The Berea Community School Pirates swim team faces some of the same challenges the more visible sports and clubs at Berea do. Berea is a small school, usually taking on larger schools. In individual sports like track and swimming, this can mean being badly outnumbered in terms of the number of athletes in each event. Last Weekend at Russell County, Berea brought 17 swimmers to meet the host team's 38.

Another challenge is that the swim team share s a number of athletes with other sports and clubs. This year's swim team includes academic team members, cheerleaders, multi-sport participants like Major McGraw and Ben Lark, and Alexandria Horn, who is already busy playing middle school and high school varsity basketball.

As is the case with soccer, football, and basketball , you won't hear anyone complaining about the size of the competing schools (or even the relative size of their athletes). Facing bigger schools and sharing participants with other coaches is just the way it is. In individual events, the race is primarily against the clock, although the team overall has seen some success at large meets.

In the Eagle Classic, hosted by Scott High School in Covington, the Pirates placed 13th out of 22 teams. Second-year coach Phillip Shackelford felt this was a good showing considering the size of the competing schools and the fact some of those teams swim year-round.

Shackelford, known variously as Phillip, Flip, Shack, and of course Coach, leads his team of nomadic swimmers all over the state in search of competition. Berea lacks a home pool and cannot host events. They practice at Berea College's pool 4 days a week.

In his middle and high school days, Shackelford swam competitively for the Amateur Athletic Union for 7 years, and has stayed involved in swimming since.

The best chance for home town fans to see the Pirates compete may be the Regionals on February10, where individuals can qualify for the state swim meet. The competition will be held at Eastern Kentucky University.

Scoring: Parmis (10) Hayes (9) Freeman (6) Ramey (5) Lanham (4) Renner (2) Westfall (2)

Garrard County jumped out to a big 1st quarter lead. The Lady Eagles were not able to recover from that. After the game, assistant coach William Dooley commented, "Garrard County is a talented team that is very well coached. Our girls have worked hard all week and have shown some improvements, but this was a tough game for us."

Lady Eagles 64 Sayre 55

Scoring: Hayes (16) Lanham (16) Renner (16) Ramey (5) Smith (4) Westfall (4) Freeman (3)

The Lady Eagles are starting to reap benefits from their emphasis on intensity through the entire game. Assistant Coach William Dooley said, "We are thrilled with tonight's win. Our girls maintained their intensity until the end, even through overtime. We hope to build on this win and continue to get better."

ing and asked a lot of what if questions. What is its importance to the corridor there? What if we could do something with it? There are no hidden agendas here, but we are asking how can a building be used to better tourism and economic development in Berea. Whether this goes forward or not is something we need to talk about.”

Commission member Charles Arnold reported on the information they had gotten from the Carpenters, who own the building in question on the corner of Chestnut and Fee. They confirmed that the building was for sale, and the Carpenters would sell it for $575,000. They would finance it with no down payment, and they were willing to give an option for four months. The asking price would equal approximately $34 a square foot.

McCormick asked everyone on the commission to share their ideas for the space. Many of the commission members stated that there was always a need for meeting space for larger groups, and also a multi-use space for adults, families and youth in the community. Many visitors to Berea expressed interest in bringing larger groups to Berea, according to some of the commission members, but discovered there were no places for them to meet. A Wesleyan group will be coming to Berea in early February, with a group of 200 delegates, and they will be renting Berea Baptist for their space.

Pat Greathouse, the owner of a bed and breakfast, stated that she would often have couples who loved Berea, but were disappointed there wasn’t more meeting space for the groups they would like to bring. She stated one couple from Scotland talked about bringing their bagpipe convention to Berea.

Arnold said, “I’m going to get on my soapbox. I think this is Berea’s future. I see the Learnshops as someday being a weekly thing. We would get 1,000 people coming to Berea a month. I’d like to see this growing.”

All the commission members agreed that Berea was literally running out of space for different festivals and conferences. The Acton Folk Center stays booked up.

Little brought up the question of renovation costs for the building, and also how many it could fit according to the fire marshal. Commission members agreed that there would need to be renovations, which would decrease the usable space after bathrooms and other areas were put in. They discussed contracting with a company to conduct a feasibility study on the property, and some talked about going directly to an architect to see what their thoughts were.

Concerns were raised about ongoing costs of the building, and who would be responsible for those. They would also need to make a decision soon on whether they would pay for an option on the Carpenter building.

The commission set up a meeting with City Administrator Randy Stone in order to discuss the budgeting situation, find out what they are proposing to do and what it will cost. Once a decision is made on how to go forward, that recommendation will be taken to city council.

COUNTY

Godsend. The Madison County Detention Center is a 190 bed facility, but currently has 260 inmates. When magistrate Billy Ray Hughes asked Jailer Doug Thomas if there were currently 50 people who would be eligible for a home incarceration program, Thomas replied, “easily.”

Instead of contracting out with a company to monitor and administrate the program, Clark recommended putting the program directly under the supervision of the county, similar to the situation at Clark County. He stated it would keep the costs much less, since they would only pay the lease amount for the electronic equipment that is used to monitor the prisoners. A full-time deputy sheriff could then run the program with a few part-time employees.

“There’s one company in Richmond that does this program,” Clark said, “but people would have a hard time affording it. Let’s bring it in-house, and lease the equipment instead of bidding out a service. If the company has a problem with an inmate cutting loose, they’re going to call the sheriff’s office to handle it anyway.”

County Attorney Marc

Robbins stated the technology had gotten so advanced that different zones could be programmed in as exclusionary, keeping the inmates from traveling to different sections.

“I think it would be a great program,” Robbins said, “as long as community safety is our priority.”

Robbins stated that it could also be a good program to look at for juveniles. Since the Madison County Detention Center isn’t set up to take youth offenders, the sheriff’s department spends a lot of manpower and fuel transporting them to other locations.

The magistrates responded favorably to the idea, with many of them interested in the significant savings this could provide for the county. The inmates would be charged for the program, with a possible weekly fee for the lease of the equipment, and the county would not be absorbing the cost of providing food, lodging and medical care for those inmates.

Robbins pointed out that who would be eligible for the home incarceration program would be subject to the district court’s approval.

“They’d consider the ones who would be working, going to school, taking care of their families,” Clark said.

Clark gave the magistrates a copy of the equipment lease agreement to look at, and stated that they could continue the discussion at a later meeting.

Clark next brought up the question of whether the county would be interested in partnering with the City of Berea to purchase property to dump brush. Currently the county has to travel to Union City to dump off brush and limbs, but individual residents are not allowed to use the site. Clark has been interested in a property since taking office that the county as well as residents can use for dumping off natural debris after events such as the ice storm.

Clark had initially brought up the idea at a joint meeting of the three governments, but Richmond was not interested in the partnership since the city already had their own dumping ground.

“Berea’s very interested,” Clark said, “but they’re waiting to see how the county feels about it.”

They are looking at two “huge hollars” in Garrard County of 224 acres that Clark said wouldn’t get filled up in 200 years. The plan would be to split the cost 50/50 with the City of Berea.

“This would be a place that we could open up to 85,000 people in the county to take their limbs and tree branches and other stuff,” Clark said, who suggested opening up the property two days a week to the public.

Clark will speak to the Garrard County officials to make sure they are fine with the plan, and if so, he stated he would bring the matter back to the fiscal court.

“Sounds like a win-win situation for the county,” Magistrate Larry Combs said. “Now they have to take it to Estill and they have to pay for it.”

In other business

- Scott Tussey gave the solid waste report for 2011. Last year, the department cleaned up 760 miles of county roads and collected 4,209 bags of trash. The loan-a-truck program was utilized 199 times, and there were 640 large item pick-ups of things such as furniture and appliances. Pounds of recycling picked up last year equaled 807,250, and they had 1,272 livestock removals with an average of 24.46 removals per week.

- The property of 150 Cameron Way in Berea was approved to be changed from general commercial to single family residential. The owner wanted the zoning cleared up, before his child inherited it.

- The next meeting of the three governments will take place Feb. 16 at the Madison County Extension Office.

ALCOHOL

– the Berea College owned Boone Tavern – is located. Since the local option election was for the East Berea precinct, only Berea residents from that precinct signed the petition. The petition needed to have 103 signatures, equaling 25 percent of the registered voters from the East Berea precinct who voted in the general election in November.

The particular Kentucky statute, 242.1242, that details the local option election for qualified historic sites, states, “to promote economic development and tourism in any county or city in which prohibition is in effect, in whole or in part, and a qualified historic site is located, a local option election for the limited sales of alcoholic beverages by the drink may be held in the precinct of the county where the qualified historic site is located . . .”

Some Bereans were concerned earlier that this particular election would prevent residents from later bringing a city-wide election for alcoholic sales in restaurants throughout Berea. The Kentucky statute states that no local option election shall be held in the same territory more than once every three years. However, in one Kentucky court case it was determined that a precinct and city were different territories, so the East Berea precinct would not preclude another election occurring for the whole city.

The county clerk’s office will be verifying all the 103 names on the petition, to make sure they are all registered voters for the East Berea precinct. Once they verify those, the request for an election will be turned into Judge Executive Kent Clark, who will have three days to set the election date. The election must take place between 60 and 90 days after the petition was turned in.

Convocation on Immigration, Citizenship

On January 26 at 3 p.m. in Phelps Stokes Auditorium, author and activist Rinku Sen will present "Immigration and Citizenship in the Age of Globalization" during a convocation.

Rinku Sen is the president and executive director of the Applied Research Center (ARC) and the publisher of Colorlines.com. Sen has been a leading figure in the racial justice movement for the last 20 years and has positioned the ARC as the movement's national home for media, research and activism. Sen has laced together journalism and organizing to further social change, with an expertise in race, feminism, immigration, economic justice, philanthropy and community organizing. In 2008, Utne Reader recognized Sen as one of "Fifty Visionaries Who Are Changing Your World."

Before working with the ARC Sen held several leadership roles at the Center for Third World Organizing (CTWO), a national network designed to achieve social and economic justice. Sen trained new organizers and crafted public policy campaigns for CTWO from 1988-2000. Currently, Sen is the vice chair of the Schott Foundation for Public Education and a board member of the Philanthropic Initiative for Racial Equity. Sen is also the chairwoman of the Media Consortium, an association of progressive independent media outlets, and she sits on the boards of the Restaurant Opportunities Centers United and Working America.

Ms. Magazine named Sen one of 21 feminists to watch in the 21st century and Sen's book, "The Accidental American: Immigration and Citizenship in the Age of Globalization" won the Nautilus Book Award Silver Medal and was a Finalist for the ForeWord Magazine 2008 Book of the Year Award.

Sen has made appearances on NPR; GritTV; Fox News; C-Span; Brave New Film's Meet the Bloggers; The Tavis Smiley Show; Air America's Ron Reagan Show; Asia Pacific Forum; Pacifica Radio Stations, including KPFA's The Morning Show; Regional NPR shows including WNYC's The Takeaway, Peter B. Collins, and Michael Eric Dyson.

Those in the Berea Folk Gymnastic Club (BFGC) say they have had great success with this year's program. Each year they see more and more children joining them for recreational fun. The group is grateful to all involved, from children and their parents to Berea College students. Their help and enthusiasm make the program special. The goal at BFGC is to inspire children to maintain a healthy lifestyle through fun activities and games. Helping the youngest children explore their own athletic talent by improving their motor skills and safely increase their difficulty level. The older children typically have more body awareness which allows them a unique taste of what real Danish gymnastics is about. The group strives to maintain this non-competitive gymnastics program. BFGC offers classes for 2-5 years old and their parents, 5-7 years old and 8 years old – early teen. Classes are once a week. BUSINESS

Word From Berea Streets

What locally owned business would you like to see in Berea?

Shelley Tucker from Berea said, "I would like to see a small shop that offers smoothies and salads using mostly organic and local foods."

Georgia Bowers from Berea said, "Although I shop at the local chain stores I would like to see a locally owned and affordable clothing store as an option."

Yvonne DeShazor from Berea said, "I would like a store that carries products that reflect the cultural, ethnic and religious diversities of our community like personal care items, food, literature etc..)"

Appalachia Mission Offers Hope & Help

By Sheri Patterson
Citizen Reporter

Many Bereans and local residents could use a break from this tough economy. Thanks to the Appalachia Mission of Hope (AMOH) that opened this past July, Bereans now have a new place to shop that will be easier on the pocketbook and also offers a greater blessing to the community.

AMOH, located off of Hwy 25S on Slate Lick Rd., offers clothing, appliances and furniture at amazing prices. All clothing and shoes cost $1.00 per item and some can be found new with tags.

Customer Krista Phillips says she shops at AMOH because "she can get more for her money for her three children."

AMOH is a Christian, non-profit organization first established in the garage of Ann Williams of Jackson County. Ann explains she had a dream and desire to help others in her community and began the food pantry and clothing from her home.

As the mission grew and lack of space soon became an issue, she expanded the mission into a larger building in Jackson County where it has been serving the needs of the local people there for several years now.

Ann then noticed many customers were traveling from Berea and Mt. Vernon, and realized this area was in need as well. She expanded to Berea by acquiring the spacious 3,000 square foot building that was

Myers Receives Six KPA Awards

Staff Report

The Berea Citizen editor, Beth Myers, received six Kentucky Press Association (KPA) awards in the Citizen's weekly newspaper category at the annual convention last Friday night in Lexington, including a first place award for her ongoing coverage of the Fairness Ordinance in Berea. The category for the first place award was Best On-Going/Extended Coverage Story.

The other five awards included three second place certificates and two third place.

She won second place awards in the categories of Best Sports Feature Story, Best Column and Best General News Story. She won third place awards for her investigative series of the drug culture in Berea and for her page design of the lifestyle section.

Myers stated, "I was very honored to be given these awards by KPA, the organization that holds all journalism in Kentucky to such high standards."

There are approximately 120 weekly newspapers and 23 daily newspapers in the state of Kentucky.

formerly part of Appalachian Village. Ann, along with her daughter Jennifer Hamlin and a crew of ten volunteers, work at sorting, organizing and operating the mission. It is their hope that the mission will be as successful here as it has been in Jackson County. AMOH not only offers affordable clothing and items, but gives back to the community by investing the proceeds into unique annual care projects. Previous annual projects have included a community wide baby shower, a back to school family picnic, Easter baskets, back to school haircut and a work force helping the elderly and disabled with home repairs. The mission has also become somewhat of a community hub, explains Jennifer Hamlin. For many people it provides a safe and healthy place to visit and share their stories, prayer requests and life skills. It is an environment where people feel they are joining together to help others. Ann says, “The goal of AMOH is to not only provide necessary aid to the peoples of Appalachia, but in doing so, we strive to show God’s love in action. We feel that in addition to the services we provide, we are planting seeds into those we help.” She continued, “Currently it is going well but we can always use donations. We have had a good response from the people who are coming along beside us to help others in the community.” The mission is open Monday, Tuesday and Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. All donations are welcome and are tax deductible. For more information visit their website at www.amohonline.org.

The Berea Business and Professional Women’s Chapter of the KFB-PW convened on December 6 at the Smokehouse Grill in Berea for dinner and the annual Rudolph Auction. It was an exciting event with auctioneer, Danetta Allen auctioning off over a hundred items including homemade bourbon balls, locally made pottery pieces, china and crystal, perfumes, makeup, handcrafted wreaths, and small furniture pieces to name just a few. Mackenzie Norton and Andy Northern assisted in showing the items and delivering them to the winning bidder. More than 40 people were in attendance for the event. The club wishes to thank everyone who supported our effort with their contributions of merchandise and services and those who came out and joined in the festivities. The proceeds will be used to provide two scholarships to seniors from the two high schools in Berea. The next meeting is scheduled for February 7, at 6:00 p.m. at the Smokehouse Grill in Berea. The featured speaker will be Dr. Robert Boardman, from Boardman Family Chiropractic in Richmond. The club invite all interested parties to come join them.

Westervelt Teaching Dulcimer, Meat Production

The Spring 2012 Westervelt Program will be fabricating an Appalachian Dulcimer and Meat Preparation. These classes will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30-8:30 p.m. with Gary Mahoney and Mike Panciera as the professors. The Westervelt program was named for Edmund C. Westervelt and was designed to give Berea College students, faculty, staff and people from the community the opportunity to have a practical “hands-on” experience enabling them to become more self-sufficient and a more informed consumer of goods and services.

The Westervelt program, which is always offered on Tuesday and Thursday evenings to avoid conflicts with daytime classes, has included classes on graphic arts, electronics, power mechanics and metals. To register contact Sandy Wells at 859-985-3033 between the hours of 8:00 a.m and 5:00 p.m. beginning January 23. There is a $10 non-refundable registration fee for each course. In addition participants will be responsible for all materials used. Classes are limited to 12 participants. Participants must be at least 18 years old to enroll in the Westervelt Program. Each student in the dulcimer class will need the following safety equipment: safety glasses and hearing protection.

Dulcimer
February 7, 9, 14, 16, 21, 23, 28, March 1, 6, 8
The class will concentrate on the design and production of an Appalachian Dulcimer

Meat Preparation
March 20, 22, 27, 29, April 3, 5, 10, 12, 17, 19
In this class, people will learn recipes and techniques for making fresh and smoked sausages as well as some cured meats, such as bacon.

The Terrace Nursing and Rehabilitation Facility Receives Recognition

The Terrace Nursing and Rehabilitation Facility, Berea was recognized by the Kentucky Association of Health Care Facilities (KAHCF) for several outstanding achievements in long term care as part of the annual long term convention held in Louisville, Kentucky. More than 1,000 health care professionals from across the state were in attendance at the conference and more than 40 awards were given.

Loretta Powell, SRNA and Central Supply Clerk at The Terrace, received the 2011 Eastern District Nurse Aide of the Year Award. This is the second year Loretta has received this honor. Loretta has worked in long-term care for the past 21 years. She has been employed with the facility for the past eleven years. Loretta wears many hats at our facility...she works as our Central Supply Clerk, our Indirect Spirometry Tech, our transportation coordinator, helps with audits and cares for our residents in the facility. Loretta has received numerous recognition awards for her dedication to our residents in the facility. In 2008, she was named our Nurse Aide of the Year, in 2005 she was named an Employee of the Month and she has received numerous POP and CARE awards through the years. We are very proud of Loretta and think this honor is well deserved! Congratulations Loretta!

Kristy Mink BSW, Director of Social Services at The Terrace, received the 2011 Eastern District Social Worker of Year Award. Kristy has been a Social Worker for the past eleven years. She graduated from Eastern Kentucky University. She began her career at Hospice and then joined our team five years ago. Kristy does an excellent job for us in Social Services but it is all the extras that she does that makes her really stand out. A couple of events that Kristy has spearheaded that have made such a difference are...our Annual Memorial Service and our Annual Christmas Dessert Extravaganza. Kristy has a family member that has been a long term resident in the facility for the past ten years. Being so involved in his care has given her a great insight to what our family members go through when entrusting us with their loved ones care. We are very blessed to have such a kind, soft hearted and dedicated Social Worker. Congratulations Kristy! We think you are just the best!

Ruth Nelson RN, LNHA, Nurse Consultant at The Terrace, received the 2011 Statewide Corporate Involvement Award. Ruth has been a Registered Nurse for the past twenty-one years. She became an Administrator fourteen years ago and in 2002 began working for The Terrace. In 2004, Ruth accepted the Nurse Consultant position with PMD. Ruth specializes in nursing assessment and documentation. She is an AANAC Certified Resident Assessment Coordinator. The Terrace would like to thank Ruth for all her expert knowledge she has shared with us regarding the MDS process. We are proud to be affiliated with such an outstanding nurse and feel she was most deserving of this award. Way to go Ruth!

The facility also received two additional KAHCF PAC fundraising awards.
